What is a drone? Put simply, a drone is an unmanned aircraft. The origins of drones can be traced to the military, as the first reusable radio-controlled aircraft in the Thirties, built for target practice by the Royal Marines. This prototype is often considered to be the earliest incarnation of the models used worldwide today. The first military drones were then given cameras and used for surveying what was happening in the Vietnam War in the 1960s. More recently military drones have been fitted with missiles but drones are no longer just operated by the military as smaller versions are used for all sorts of purposes by companies and individuals. For example, Amazon and Google are using drones to deliver parcels. Facebook wants to fly giant drones that can carry internet signal to remote areas. Drones are also being used to film documentaries and news reports in dangerous or inaccessible areas.	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14
The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) governs the use of drones. Drones is classed as a type of aircraft, not as a toy, but there are only a few restrictions if the drone weighs less than 20kg. Flying for commercial use requires the permission from the CAA, and users will have to show they are "sufficiently competent".	15 16 17 18 19 20
More than 300 companies and public bodies have permission to fly. Many of these are film, photography and production companies such as the BBC and ITV. Experts have predicted that small drones will soon fill the skies, as civilian applications to use drones are being made	21 22 23 24 25
People are not allowed to use them to spy on, or watch other people. In the same way that it is not permissible to climb a ladder and take pictures of a neighbour's garden, or any private space, so drones cannot be used to break existing privacy laws.	26 27 28 29 30
Many high street shops sell the sort of small drones that can be safely used by enthusiasts, for as little as £89.99. Parrott Rolling Spider, for example, can be flown using a smartphone at up to 20 metres distance and takes aerial shots.	31 32 33 34 35
A more imminent danger is the risk of collision. Air safety officials are investigating the first near miss between a passenger jet and a drone near Heathrow Airport.	36 37 38

Big Ben- Big Ben is the nickname for the Great Bell of the clock at the north end of the Palace of Westminster in London, and often extended to refer to the clock and the clock tower, but the name was first given to the Great Bell.	1 2 3 4
The Elizabeth Tower, which stands at the north end of the Houses of Parliament, was completed in 1859 and the Great Clock was started on the 31 st May, in that year, with the Great Bell's strikes heard for the first time on the 11 th July and the quarter bells first chimed on the 7 th September. Most people are surprised to learn that Big Ben is not the landmark clock which is linked to the Houses of Parliament. It is actually the name of the largest of the five bells which hang within the clock tower.	5 6 7 8 9 10 11
The story of Big Ben begins in 1834 with the devastating fire which destroyed the Old Palace of Westminster. This led to the building of one of London's most prominent attractions and a world famous landmark of the city. A competition was announced to find the best design for a new Palace of Westminster, also known as the Houses of Parliament. The successful architect was Charles Barry and as part of his design, he included a landmark clock tower that was to be the largest in the world at that time.	12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19
The building of a clock tower should have been a straightforward task, however, the building of the clock tower to house Big Ben was fraught with disasters and took over 28 years	20 21 22 23
It included problems such as:	24
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The completed clock not fitting into the tower it was designed for • The death of the clockmaker just one year into the project and his nephew hastily changing his name so he could continue the work • An error in the mould resulting in the bell being cast two tons over its intended weight • The great bell cracking irreparably before it was even hung • Big Ben cracking a second time when the same over-heavy hammer continued to be used. 	25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33

When is the best time to see the Northern Lights?

One of the most spectacular sights in the world, the Northern Lights are a must-see on a trip to Norway, but when is it best to see the lights? The Northern Lights appear only at high latitudes on dark nights from September to March. As a naturally occurring phenomenon, the appearance of the Northern Lights is notoriously difficult to predict any further in advance than about two hours before it happens. So much is dependent on solar activity and, whilst we can estimate the number of sunspots that might occur on the sun, we can accurately predict neither when they will occur nor how frequently.

There are few phenomena that capture the imagination like the aurora borealis and lucky stargazers can witness anything from an ethereal green glow on the horizon to pulsating scarlet streaks across the sky. First and foremost, to see the Northern Lights, the skies must be dark. This immediately rules out daylight hours and, contrary to popular opinion, it is not pitch black in the Aurora Zone for the entire winter. Indeed, despite the sun not appearing above the horizon, even the shortest day brings three to four hours of grey/blue light which renders the Northern Lights invisible to the naked eye.

Once darkness falls, the Aurora can be visible at any time of day and we have seen them as early as 4pm and as late as 6am. But the best time seems to be around 9:30pm to 1am.

When visiting to see the Northern Lights, the key principle is to dress in layers and it is worth investing in good base-layer clothing- thermal underwear, good boots, warm socks, a thick woolly hat and good mittens. A fleece top makes an excellent mid layer and a quilted down jacket or parka is favourite for the top layer.

Make sure the outer layer is big enough to go over all your other layers. Depending on how remote your destination, you might consider hiring or buying winter-sports-style clothing.

21. What impact does the shortest day have?

- a. It is the best time to see the Northern Lights.
- b. It makes the Northern Lights invisible to see.
- c. It predicts the Northern Lights in less than two hours.

22. According to the text, which statement is true?

- a. You can see the Lights all the year round.
- b. You can see the Lights when the sun is out.
- c. You will not see the Lights at low latitudes.

23. What are the Northern Lights also known as?

- a. Aurora Borealis
- b. Star gazers
- c. Aurora Zone

24. According to the text, which statement is the 'key principle'?

- a. To invest in good clothes.
- b. To dress in layers.
- c. To dress in a parka jacket.

25. The words 'best time' in the text suggest 'most conducive to a favourable outcome', which word could replace 'best' in the text:

- a. optimum
- b. least
- c. greatest

Text 4

Rome: Rome, Italy’s capital, is a sprawling, cosmopolitan city with nearly 3,000 years of globally influential art, architecture and culture on display. Ancient ruins such as the Forum and the Colosseum reflect the power of the former Roman Empire. The Vatican City, headquarters of the Roman Catholic Church, has St Peter’s Basilica and the Vatican Museums, which house masterpieces such as Michelangelo’s Sistine Chapel frescoes.	1 2 3 4 5 6
In Rome, classical ruins and early Christian places of worship stand next to, or lie beneath, Renaissance palazzos and Baroque fountains. But there are also great neighbourhood trattorias and quirky shops. The city’s mild Mediterranean climate is another persuasive draw for visitors from the cool north.	7 8 9 10 11
There’s no real off-season in the Eternal City. Spring and autumn are the busiest tourist seasons, with a peak at Easter as Vatican pilgrims increase visitor numbers. Winter, especially from mid-January into the first week of March, can be a great time to come and you may be lucky with the weather. Hotel rates are lower and restaurants are blissfully uncrowded. If you can take the heat, August, which is when most Romans head for the beach, is another good month to find offers on hotel rooms. The most perfect months, weatherwise, are probably April, May and October. It is also at this time of year that you will generally find the most pleasant temperature differential between balmy Rome and the cold north.	12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20
The city observes all Italian public holidays, as well as two Rome-specific holidays: April 21 and June 29. Most businesses close on holidays and during the month of August. Restaurant hours is generally noon through 2:30 p.m. for lunch, and 7 until 11:30 p.m. for dinner. Tips cannot be added to the restaurant bill and should not be excessive, about 10% is average.	21 22 23 24 25
Drinking alcohol in the street and going bare-chested are no-nos. Dress code in churches is shoulders and midribs covered and 'modest' dress or skirt length for women, while for men vests and really short shorts are frowned on - though these rules are only rigorously enforced in major basilicas like St Peter's. Italians always say hello and goodbye in social situations, including when entering or shops and bars.	26 27 28 29 30 31
A simple ‘buon giorno’ in the morning or ‘buona sera’ in the afternoon or evening goes a long way. ‘Ciao’ is for friends, family or young people. If somebody thanks you by saying ‘grazie’, it’s polite to say ‘prego’ (you’re welcome) in return.	32 33 34

- c. Line 8

28. A grammatical mistake has been made on:

- a. Line 22
- b. Line 29
- c. Line 33

29. Which word in the text can be replaced by the word 'variation':

- a. climate
- b. uncrowded
- c. differential

30. A word has been omitted on line 30. It should be...

- a. remaining
- b. leaving
- c. veto

31. The phrase 'goes a long way' relates to:

- a. Not speaking any Italian.
