The Shipwreck Hunter	1
	2
Before the 20 th century and the invention of the airplane, people navigated the world's seas on ships, boats and rafts. It was the only way to travel overseas	3 between countries. However, as long as there has been ocean travel, there have	4 been shipwrecks. It is thought that there are as many as three million sunken	5
ships beneath the waves, littering our seabeds.	6
	7
	8
With these shipwrecks come shipwreck hunters, like Tom, who developed a	9 passion for fishing and the sea from an early age. He went to Southampton	10
University, which has easy access to mountain streams, freshwater habitats,	11
rocky reefs and a bay, that is home to the largest population of bottlenose	12 dolphins in the UK. Tom went on to ____ with the US navy, when leaving	13
University studies, with up to date technology skills, searching for crashed	14
airplanes.	15
	16
Many of the most important finds belong to the Second World War, which was	17 fought on land, sea and the air. In 2001, HMS Hood was discovered, a British	18 battleship sunk in 1941. Most discoveries are a celebration, with Tom jumping	19 up and down shouting, "We've found it!" and punching the air.	20 21
Another, more ancient find, were a 16 th century Portuguese ship, part of a	22
fleet that had set out on a sea route to India from Portugal, all the way round	23
the south of Africa.	24

Climbing Kilimanjaro for charity

Friends and family, I would like to invite you to a fund raising night, on Saturday 18th August at the Biscuit Factory, Sandyford at 7:30pm. As some of you know, I, with three friends from the hospital I work in, are going to take on the challenge of a lifetime and climb Mount Kilimanjaro for the British Heart Foundation.

We are holding a charity ball, in order to raise the funds. There will be an auction of donated gifts from local companies, which include a fantastic day at a health spa for two, family of four cinema tickets for a year and an off peak membership at the local gym.

We are now in training for the 42 mile, 8 day, round trip, due to start next March, on Thursday 16th and finish on 23rd March. The trip will start at the western base of the mountain, giving us sunny views from all angles. The first day will be a rest day at Ngoro Waterfalls, Marangu, followed by a 5 hour climb, crossing streams and climbing rocky, barren terrain on the next day. The most challenging day will be our last, starting at midnight, we will climb for 6 hours through snow and finishing in the rain forest.

So come and join us and learn more about this exciting expedition. Tickets are £50, which includes a 3 course meal and bottle of wine per table.

How do hurricanes form?

Hurricanes form over the warm ocean water of the tropics. When warm moist air over the water rises, it is replaced by cooler air. The cooler air will then warm and start to rise. This cycle causes huge storm _____ to form. These storm clouds will begin to rotate with the spin of the Earth forming an organised system.

Parts of a Hurricane

- Eye - At the center of the hurricane is the eye. The eye is an area of very low air pressure. There are generally no clouds in the eye and the wind is calm. Don't let this fool you, however, the most dangerous part of the storm is at the edge of the eye called the eye wall.
- Eye wall - Around the outside of the eye is a wall made up of very heavy clouds. This is the most dangerous part of the hurricane and where the highest speed winds are. The winds at the eye wall can reach speeds of 155 miles per hour.
- Rainbands - Hurricanes have large spirally bands of rain called rainbands. These bands can drop huge amounts of rainfall causing flooding when the hurricane hits land.
- Diameter - Hurricanes can become huge storms. The diameter of the hurricane is measured from one side to the other. Hurricanes can span a diameter of over 600 miles.
- Height - The storm clouds that power hurricanes can become very tall. A powerful hurricane can reach nine miles into the atmosphere.
